SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1892. WESTMINSTER'S CHURCH AND ORGAN.

As no one has ever seen a perfectly straight line drawn, or a perfect curve described, so we suppose no one has ever seen a perfect church or a perfect organ; but if perfection be that which seems to admit of no adverse criticism, then the Westminster people have given us an example of perfection in their church and organ. The mathematician armed with a microscope would find defects in the curves which the most accomplished Spencerian penman could place upon the paper, but the ordinary observer upon beholding them exclaims that they are perfect. We suppose, on general principles, that there must be something not quite right about the new organ in Westminster Church, and that if we only knew enough about organ building and searched hard enough, we could find it. We likewise suppose, for the same reason, that there are defects in the plan and execution of that gem of a building on the corner of Franklin and Fremont Streets; and had we served our time in an architect's office and in a sufficent number of building trades, we could discover and point out something wrong. But for all practical purposes, regard of course always being paid to size, the organ and the building which contains it, are simply perfect for the purposes for which they were intended.

This may sound like extravagant language, but it was the language heard on every side in the large and critical audience which assembled in Westminster Church on Wednesday evening last. Enthusiastic friends of Westminster had raised high the public expectation, and nothing except unusual and extraordinary merit prevented disappointment. But there was no disappointment, for even the high expectations were more than realized. The Westminster congregation should and does receive congratulations on all sides. When so many have done so well, it may seem invidious to mention any names but we are confident that no one in Westminster congregation, and then certainly no one at all, will have the faintest twinge of jealousy if we allude to two-Mr. James C. Beach, who has furnished so large a proportion of the necessary funds, and Mr. E. W. Sutton, who has administered these same funds and given his personal attention to every detail of the work. Without these two generous and enthusiastic friends, we might almost say there had been no new Westminster Church. The organ which Mr. Beach has given to the church in memory of his deceased daughter Marion, is a noble gift well ed with stating that the applicant, Mr. bestowed.

THE WESTMINSTER ORGAN CON-CERT.

We would that every reader of THE CITIZEN had been present in Westminster Church Wednesday evening, the concert so well illustrated remarks which have heretofore appeared in this paper. In the first place the Odell organ is capable of giving forth music both sweet and grand, and in the next place the organist of the occasion, Mr. Frank Taft, was expert in bringing forth the capabilities of the instrument before him. Those orchestral effects, which we have so often lamented the absence of in most of our organ music, came forth one after the other till the soul was satisfied with good things. The "Pontifical March" enabled Mr. Taft to show the power of the new instrument. The selections from Faust enabled him to exhibit the variety of its 1esources.

The cornet-intermezzo "Cavalleria Rusticana," rendered by Messrs. Bliss, Pinney and Greenough, was enthusiastically encored. Mr. Taft, in his own composition of the "Nuptial Air" and Faust of the First Church, Newark, were "Sounds from the Cathedral," gave the audience something both novel and entertaining. The imitation of distant music was wonderfully real and showed off both player and instrument to great advantage. The Brooklyn Hill Quartette produced a much better effect than when they song here before. The sore throats were evidently better, and the singers were able to delight the audience. Every song was encored. The programme will be found elsewhere.

Improvements at the National Bank. Business men and all other practical people appreciate the fact that a wellconstructed safe deposit vault is preferable to police or watchmen for protecting valuables. Every well-regulated town possesses some such device and as this town ranks among such, it is very natural that something of the kind should be introduced. Among the improvements being made at the national bank a safe deposit vault will be the most important. Men are now at work in the bank constructing the foundation for both the money and safe deposit vaults. The money vault now in the bank will soon be moved on a foundation of six brick piers, across the top of which iron beams are placed and brickwork built on top, making a solid wall of iron and brick 131-2 inches in thickness, on which the safe will rest. This. foundation is of such strength that in case the bank building was destroyed by fire the safe would not be moved from its position. A similar foundation will be constructed under the safe deposit vault, and the space between the piers utilized for the construction of a book safe. The safe deposit vault is being built by the Hall Safe & Lock Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, a firm that has the highest reputation for this class of work. The vault will be seven feet nine inches high, six feet one inch wide and three feet four inches in depth, and will weigh 28,000 pounds. It will contain 143 boxes. The boxes will be 51-2 inches wide, 20 inches long and 31-2 to 6 inches

Each depositor or reuter will have one or more keys, that is if more than one come. member of a family desires a key. The person in charge of the boxes at the bank will carry the "master" key. renter's key and the master key must be applied to the box at the same time in order to open it. The renter cannot open his box without the assistance of the man who carries the master key: neither can the latter open the box without the assistance of the renter.

The vault will be of the most approved pattern. The doors will be locked with the gravity automatic bolt device. This device is free from all complications that have a tendency to cause a lock out. It is opened by a weight which is a positive feature, as springs are at all times liable to break and the opening power of any device destroyed. All danger from a lock out is obviated by the gravity device.

The operation of the device is very simple, and requires only the setting of requires no winding, and is controlled by two chronometric movements, each capable of unlocking, and in case of the stoppage of one the other will perform the necessary service.

made of steel, will divide the deposit vault from the banking office. Private rooms will be constructed for the use of persons renting the boxes where coupons may be cut from bonds and other business of a private nature transacted. The present directors' room will be made smaller. The rates for 3 P. M.; Even Song, 7.30 P. M. rentals will be lower than in the city, while the safety of the valuables deposited will be fully equal. Several applications for boxes have been received. It will be about three months yet before the vault will be completed. The work of constructing the vault is under the personal supervision of L. W. Moen of the Hall Safe & Lock Company, a man thoroughly experienced in that class of

Mr. Casanowicz's Case.

The application of Immanuel Casanowicz to be reinstated as a minister in the Presbyterian Church was discussed at length by the Newark Presbytery at its meeting in the Knox Presbyterian Church, Kearney, Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Casanowicz was a student in the German Theological Seminary in this place, and was at one time a member of the Presbytery, but he severed his connection with it and attached himself to the Roman Catholic Church. His request was to be restored to his former standing in the Presbyterian Church. The matter has been before the Presbytery for some time.

The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Knox, chairman of the special committee to which voluminous report. The report conclud- Denton. An Easter service is Casanowicz, was still a minister in a Christian church, but not in the Presbyterian Church: that it was for the Presbytery to say whether he was a suitable candidate for restoration.

The Rev. Dr. Henry W. Ballantine said he thought Mr. Casanowicz should make a public renouncement and confession before the Synod before the Presbytery should look favorably upon his reinstatement. Dr. Knox read a letter from Mr. Casanowicz, in which he acknowledged and explained his error. This letter, Dr. Knox said, had had great weight with the committee, for in it the applicant exhibited much feeling of contrition. The Rev. Dr. Lockwood and the Rev. H. W. Seibert of this place also took part in the discussisn. After much had been said on the subject the following resolution offered by Dr. Knox was adopted : "That upon the approval of his doctrine and character, and upon his expression of penitence in respect to his course, the Rev. Immanuel Casanowicz be restored to enrollment of his name on our Presbyterial record."

The Rev. Dr. Lockwood was placed on the standing committee on aid to colleges to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Knox.

Joseph Folsom a Licensed Preacher. At a meeting of the Newark Presbytery last Wednesday Messrs. Joseph Folsom of this place, son of the late John F. Folsom; Fairlie of Caldwell, and admitted as licensed preachers, and Mr. Folsom was allowed to attach himself to the New York Presbytery, where he may be ordained. The other two were given license to preach in the Newark Presby-
